Dear colleagues and friends,

We are delighted to welcome you to UC Global Health Day 2018. Today faculty, students, fellows, staff and visiting scholars from all 10 University of California campuses gather around critical issues in global health. This year's theme, Committing to a healthier world, reflects our collective commitment to addressing challenges that threaten human health, as well as the health of animals and ecosystems.

UC Global Health Day is the signature event of the UC Global Health Institute (UCGHI). UCGHI mobilizes people across UC to advance global health research, education and collaboration. As such, UC Global Health Day is intended to be a platform for learning and engagement. We hope that attendees are inspired by the cross-campus and multidisciplinary work presented at today's plenaries, breakout sessions and poster presentations.

This year, UCGHI partnered with UC San Diego to host UC Global Health Day. With robust, internationally recognized global health programs, UC San Diego has shared knowledge and resources that will undoubtedly make UC Global Health Day 2018 a success.

Once again, we welcome you and hope that this year's conference will challenge and inspire you, and result in new knowledge, collaborations and friendships.

Sincerely,

Thomas J Coates, PhD

Plenaries

Plenary I

Universal mental health coverage: Realizing the Sustainable Development Goal aspiration

Keynote speaker, Vikram Patel will synthesize key lessons from global innovations in both high and low-middle income countries and address the barriers to access to quality mental health care and the implications for the inclusion of mental health in universal health coverage. Commentators Janis H Jenkins and Bruce Link will connect these concepts to UC research and programs that are addressing global mental health.

Plenary III

Refugee and immigrant health: From research to policy and practice

This panel will feature researchers and practitioners from across UC who are working to apply clinical, social science, and public health principles to improve the health of refugees, asylum seekers and immigrants in the US. We will hear how their efforts are increasing knowledge of immigration and health issues and leading to innovative strategies to better serve these vulnerable populations.

Plenary II

The UCGHI Advocacy Initiative: Catalyzing student advocacy into action

This session will discuss the UCGHI Advocacy Initiative, designed to train UC students and faculty in political advocacy for global health issues. The panel will begin with an overview of the initiative and its strategic aims and then pivot to real-world cases of students' participation from multiple UC campuses through various types of advocacy activities. These activities include letter writing campaigns, community outreach, social media campaigns, educational outreach and use of digital publishing tools.
